SOFT NEWS.

The reception that society has been anticipating for the past few weeks is over now, but society will not immediately cease talking about it. Since Mrs. Charles Curtis and Miss Dolly Curtis issued invitations for their tea given at the Curtis home Friday afternoon, people have looked forward to the event with more eagerness than a pink tea usually inspires. Six hundred invitations were sent out, and very nearly six hundred people responded, and the large, handsome rooms of the house were well filled from 3 to 6 o'clock. Palms, ferns and chrysanthemums were used in the decoration of the house. The dining room was particularly attractive in yellow and white. Bouquets of chrysanthemums stood on the table and the plate rail and sideboard were decorated in ferns, flowers and candles. An orchestra was stationed in a bower of palms and flowers on the first landing of the stairway and played throughout the afternoon. The reception was more elaborate and more formal, both in its appointments and the number in attendance, than the tea Topeka women are accustomed to giving. As the guests approached the receiving line, their cards were taken by a servant in dress suit who announced the names to Mrs. Curtis who stood at the head of the line. It was an entirely necessary conventional, in consideration of the number of guests.

Mrs. Curtis' gown was a brocaded satin of a shell pink shade, trimmed in duchesse lace on the bodice and sleeves and reaching to the floor on the front of the skirt. Miss Dolly Curtis was dressed in a close-fitting gown of emerald green satin with an overdress of black net. The yoke and sleeves were hand run, and bands of jet were used on the bodice and skirt. A brooch of diamonds with an emerald center ornamented the yoke. A costume more suited to the tall dignified type of good looks that belongs to Miss Curtis, could scarcely have been designed. Mrs. Bristow, who stood next in line, wore black satin draped in black chiffon, with a yoke of white net. Mrs. Scott's gown was gray net, glittering with silver spangles, over white satin. The gown was made on simple lines and worn with a wide girle of Oriental beads. Miss Calderhead wore black net, over a gown with a green headed trimming. Mrs. Rome Colvin was also dressed in black. Her gown was satin with a white lace yoke. Senator Curtis stood between the reception hall and the library and greeted the guests as they passed from the receiving line toward the dining room. Punch was served in the library by Miss Pernella Curtis and a number of her girl friends. In the dining room, Mrs. David Mulvane poured tea, and Mrs. Eugene Hagan served the ice. They were assisted by Miss Leona Curtis and Miss Floyd Robinson.

The gowns worn by the receiving women, by the assisting friends, and the guests, were bewildering for their number and beauty. Mrs. D. Mulvane's dress was black chiffon over old blue, finished with inserts of lace, and an fringed Oriental trimming over the blue background made it one of the most striking creations on any of the society women this season. Her hat was cream-colored lace on top, plumage that trimmed it with a banana shade. Mrs. Eugene Hagan's gown was white satin, richly embroidered in a floral design. She wore a black hat trimmed in white plumage. Miss Floyd Robinson wore rose colored satin. Mrs. W. R. Stubbs appeared in a matchless blue gown, draped in chiffon, heavily embroidered and beaded. Mrs. Clyde Miller's dress was black satin with an overdress of black net, bodice and skirt trimmed in jet. Mrs. J. R. Kountz wore a white cloth suit trimmed in black satin and Persian bands. Her hat was black velvet with white plumes. Mrs. Josephine Webb wore a gown of gray velvet and a black velvet turban. Mrs. J. C. McClintock's dress was a striking creation in black and white, net over satin, and her hat was black with white plumes. Miss Alice Takin wore a lavender gown with the bodice trimmed in black chiffon. Mrs. S. E. Estey wore lavender also. A white chiffon with a lavender figure was draped over a plain lavender background and her hat was a lavender velvet turban. Mrs. J. C. G. Garret wore a black and white gown, a lighter shade. Mrs. Julian Snyder of Brainerd, Conn., wore a gown of white-crested material trimmed in bands of black net around the skirt, sleeves, and yoke. Her cloak and furs were white, and her hat with a white top and black facing, was trimmed in white willow plumes. Mrs. Gifford Dudley was dressed in a lavender silk gown, with a hat to match. Mrs. H. O. Garvey wore a pink satin princess with an elaborate garniture of jet and pearls. Her hat was a large seal skin with a white marabout top.

This model is just the thing for a simple serge frock for practical wear and is excellent also for part of a three-piece suit. The bodice shows a chic closing under the arm, which is continued over the hip of the skirt, and the effect is repeated again in the band at the feet. This band, by the way, does not confine the skirt perceptibly, for while the material is cut in opposite direction from that of the skirt, there are no gathers in the skirt where it joins the band. The bodice is trimmed with navy blue taffeta, matching the serge of the gown. The undersleeve is of the material with cuff of silk buttoned at the side.

Mrs. J. C. McClintock and her daughter, Mrs. J. C. Mohler, were hostesses at a bridge party this afternoon at the McClintock home on Fillmore street. The rooms were decorated in house plants from Mrs. McClintock's own conservatory, and bouquets of large chrysanthemums—yellow, white and pink, also grown by her own care. Guests for twelve tables attended the party.

Mrs. McClintock and Mrs. Mohler will give a series of parties, beginning with a tea for Miss Valerie Vaneay and Miss Lucille Vaneay of Haverhill, Mass., who will arrive Tuesday to visit Miss Gertrude McClintock. The date for the reception has not yet been fixed, but it will probably be given within two weeks.

The jumper—which could perhaps never have been said to be completely out of style—has returned to great popularity in the form of the chiffon jumper, a much more artistic creation than the original style. These little dresses add greatly to any toilet. They are simple affairs cut in kimono style, with embroidery at neck and edges of sleeves. For more elaborate toilets than that of the coat suit—for which the one above was intended—they are often made as a tunic or Russian blouse, the bottom of the short skirt being decorated with the embroidery. In the sketch here the material used was blue marquisette to be worn with a suit of the same shade and transforming the simple lingerie blouse over which it is worn into a smart and dressy one matching the coat suit. The embroidery is done in lighter shades of blue.

Mrs. D. W. Mulvane will give the second of her series of luncheons Tuesday, November 15, at her home. Eighteen or twenty guests have been asked.

Mrs. John Chaney gave an informal luncheon today at the Mission room complimentary to Mrs. E. W. Hoch of Marion, Kan., who is a guest at the John Q. Royce home. Covers were laid for Mrs. Hoch, Mrs. Chas. Spencer, Mrs. L. L. Kline, Mrs. D. W. Nellis, Mrs. H. O. Garvey, Mrs. J. C. Emahizer, Mrs. H. A. Spielman, Mrs. James Brier, Mrs. J. S. West, Mrs. Broun and Mrs. Chaney.

Mrs. A. W. Knowles will entertain a few guests informally at luncheon Wednesday at her home on Topeka avenue.

Those who attended the 'Varsity dance at Steinberg's Friday night were: Mr. and Mrs. Ward Spielman, and Mr. and Mrs. David Gossett, chaperones; Miss Marguerite Mills, Miss Marjorie Kountz, Miss Rebecca Welty, Miss Marion Thompson, Miss Julia Pratt, Miss Mary Wickwire, Miss Grace Winnegar, Miss Marguerite Larkinson, Miss Marjorie Thompson, Miss Rachel Hotchkiss, Miss Rachel Coston, Miss Laura Townsley, Miss Helen Mitchell, Miss Lydia Smith, Ruth Bauer, Miss Bess Renwick, Miss Bertha Hull, Miss Mary Gleed, Miss Louise McNeal, Miss Huldah Chapin, Miss Helen Spielman, Miss Marie Vanpool, Miss Laura Armstrong, Miss Elizabeth Holliday, Miss Esther Rodgers, Miss Emma Bolmar, Miss Ethel Frizell, Mr. Paul Moneybenny, Harold Spielman, Clarence Jordan, George George, Howard Seale, Ed Ingham, Ed Mooney, Angelo Alt, George White, Claude Adams, Wallace Pettyjohn, Herbert Heym, Fred Thompson, Ellsworth Stewart, Karl Bowman, Mr. Tripp, John C. Omer Smith, Hal Hotchkiss, Percy Beggs, Warrick Brown, Robert Steele, Fred Parfitt, Dick Fritz, Lee Johnson, Robert Pierce, Harley Bennett and Mr. Seale.

The social calendar for next week is well filled. The Troutman-Uppergraff wedding Wednesday evening, Mrs. H. Auerbach's bridge party Thursday afternoon at the Topeka club, and the Hellanhus dance Thursday evening at the Elks' lodge will be among the important affairs of the week. Mrs. Clarence Bowman will entertain Monday at an informal afternoon party for Mrs. T. K. Kennedy of Junction City, who is visiting Mrs. W. P. Bowen. Monday evening Mr. and Mrs. James Troutman will give a dinner for Miss Ann Troutman and her bridal party. Mrs. W. P. Bowen has asked guests for cards Thursday afternoon complimentary to Miss Alice Beard.

The Phi Delta Theta Alumni club will have a reunion and stag banquet Tuesday night at the National hotel. About twenty Topeka and out-of-town men will attend. The club was formerly the Delta Phi alumni, but since the Delta Phi has merged with the national fraternity, the alumni club has become the Phi Delta Theta alumni.

The furs, following the general trend of things fashionable, grow more costly, more rich and elegant each year. There seems to be a tendency to breadth of shoulder line this year in the matter of scarfs, and muffs are still huge, both the rug and the old-fashioned barrel shape being used. In

The sketch is shown a beautiful scarf and muff of black velvet and mink—a costly thing which could be duplicated in less expensive materials. The hat is of black velvet in semicircle shape girdled by a band of mink and trimmed with one solitary white ostrich plume gracefully placed.

The Musical Art society will hold its next meeting Monday evening, November 14, in Gemmill hall. At the meeting last Monday the members elected officers and discussed plans for the coming year. Dean Whitehouse suggested "The Children's Crusade," as one of the works to be used.

Mrs. C. C. Baker of Lathrop, Mo., who is visiting Mrs. C. B. Reed, will be the guest of honor at an informal party Tuesday afternoon, November 15, which Mrs. Reed will give at her home on Fillmore street.

Mrs. Dick Alden will entertain her bridge club Wednesday afternoon at her home on Topeka avenue.

The following program will be given Monday night by Miss Dorothy Mills of Bethany college at a recital at Unity church:

a March, b Minuet, c Romance, d Tarantelle, from Suite.

a Berthold Tours, b Widenham, c Fanny Bell, a Waitin' for the Cat to Die.

a J. W. Riley, b My Daughter Louise, c Homer Greene, d Dorothy B. Mills.

a Cry from the Cloister, b Anon, c Dorothy B. Mills.

a When the Old Man Smokes, b Dorothy B. Mills.

Rev. and Mrs. J. A. Renwick gave a dinner Thursday evening at their home, 812 Tyler street, for the elders of Rev. Renwick's congregation and their wives. Covers were laid for Dr. and Mrs. S. G. Stewart, Dr. and Mrs. W. S. Lindsay, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Ramsey, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Patterson, Dr. M. R. Mitchell and Rev. and Mrs. Renwick.

An entertainment will be given Tuesday evening, November 15, at the First United Presbyterian church. Eighth and Topeka avenues under the management of the Ladies' Missionary society, by Miss Ceora Lanham, reader; Miss Shepard, pianist, and Mrs. Moore, soloist.

A pretty model for a fur trimmed frock for a young girl has been sketched above. The fur is, of course, not real, and very little of it is used, a narrow strip outlining the neck and yoke and one band on the skirt. The dress is of gray blue Henrietta cloth and the wide collar and high waistline, with the neck and bow at the back, is all very girlish and very smart. The simple soutache band which trims the bodice is happily placed. The sash and yoke are of silk in a darker shade of blue. The skirt is three-gored with bias fold at the knees, trimmed in soutache and headed by the fur.

The Vignette Club will meet Tuesday with Mrs. J. W. F. Hughes at her home in Potwin.

Miss Edith Connelley has been elected to membership in the Topeka chapter and in the National Society, Daughters of the American Revolution. She is the daughter of William E. Connelley, the author. The Connelley family is one of the first families of South Carolina, the founders of it having been among the first settlers of Charleston. In the Revolution the family fought at the battle of Ninety-six. Of the immediate ancestors, one fought at Charleston under Colonel Charles Cotesworth Pinckney, two fought at the battle of King's Mountain, one of them being killed there, and one was Captain Henry Connelley of the North Carolina cavalry. Miss Edith is in her senior year in the Topeka high school.

The West Side Reading club will meet with Mrs. L. R. Lane Tuesday afternoon, November 15.

The quail shooting season is at hand, and six modern Nimrods will set out tonight for southern Oklahoma for two weeks' fowl play. The party will be made up of Mr. W. A. L. Thompson, Mr. S. E. Barber, Mr. W. R. Smith, Mr. Roy Thompson, Gen. Wilder S. Metcalf and Mr. R. W. Blair. The hunt is an annual event, and the prowess of the sportsmen is proven by the amount of game (they say) they bring back with them. Perhaps the real hunt begins when they get home and their friends search for the spoils, only to find that the glory of the mighty huntman is "one with Ninevah."

Miss Katherine McCarter, who is a student at Baker university, has been pledged to the Phi Delta sorority. The society is one of the national sororities, and the university at Baldwin has one of the handsomest houses in the west.

The wedding of Miss Blanche Irene Moore and Mr. Ralph Harris was solemnized Thursday evening at 8 o'clock by the Rev. J. Lewis. The bride was dressed in pale blue silk and was attended by Mrs. W. E. Butler. Mr. Butler was Mr. Harris' best man. Miss Helen Moore played the wedding march. Persimmon and chrysanthemums were used in the decoration of the rooms of the Harris home, where the ceremony was performed. The out-of-town guests were Miss Julia Moore, Mrs. Roy Dunmer, Mrs. E. McCranham and Mrs. George Young of Leocompton. Mr. and Mrs. Harris went for a short wedding trip and will be at home after November 15, at 409 Van Buren street.

The Ladies' Music club met Thursday with Mrs. Ralph Gaw at her home on Fillmore street. The program for the meeting follows:

Sonata Tragica, MacDowell

Homeward, Campbell-Pittin

(a) Scotch Poem, (b) Clara G.

Concerto for violin, (a) Mozart

In a Brahmin Garden, Logan

Nocturne, Burdett

Trio, Memory.

Those who took part in the program were: Mrs. Harry Tasket, Mrs. Chas. Blair, Mrs. Chas. Ritschard, Miss Esther Watts, Miss Eva Curry, Miss Ethel Bradbury Grant, Mrs. Blair, Mrs. Deacon and Mrs. Fribble. Mrs. Don Farnsworth of Chicago, was a guest at the meeting and gave a vocal selection from Madame Butterfly.

EVENING CHAT

BY RUTH CAMERON.

Letters From a Successful Business Woman to Her Niece, No. 8.

Dear Niece Joan: I have been wondering for the past month just when that letter would come.

So you happened to go down in the elevator together and got to talking, and he said you had better come along to lunch with him and finish the subject, and you made up a little fib about having an errand to do up town, and declined.

And now you are wondering if you were silly and prudish.

No, little girl, you were just as wise and fine and good—common sense as I knew my little Joan would be when that phase of a business woman's life presented itself to her.

I suspect that St. Peter chuckled when he heard that fib, and made haste to jot it down on the credit side of the ledger right under your staying at home last summer so your mother could take that trip.

Dear child, it isn't just from doing a thing like that once that harm comes. It's from doing it the second time and third and twentieth time. And the very best way I know to make sure that you won't do a thing the second and third and twentieth times is not to do it the first time.

The going to lunch once in itself wouldn't necessarily be wrong at all. It would be foolish, however, because it might give evil-minded people a chance to suspect harsh things. But it would only be wrong if it became a link in a chain of intimacy and mutual necessity for each other's company that bound you two together.

Can't anyone who is married have any friends of the opposite sex, you say? Yes, but not necessary friends. The moment anyone of the opposite sex whom you cannot marry becomes necessary for your happiness you are headed straight for a terrible Scylla and Charybdis, with unhappiness on one side and disgrace on the other.

Of course, you haven't the faintest idea there would ever be a chain of necessity between you and this man.

I haven't either. I have too much faith in your common sense.

But kindly listen to this extract from one of your letters.

"There is such an interesting man in the department next to ours. He does not have to dictate to me very often but he is very fond of music and reads the same books that I do and occasionally he comes in to talk things over. He is really much superior to any man I ever met at a dance."

And again:

"Mr. R. . . . the man I spoke of before, brought me in the last Century, as there was a very interesting article he wanted me to read."

My dear, if you had told me that this man was but an unscrupulous and uninteresting I wouldn't have had any objections to your going to lunch with him.

But these very tastes that attract you to each other, are what should warn you to keep apart.

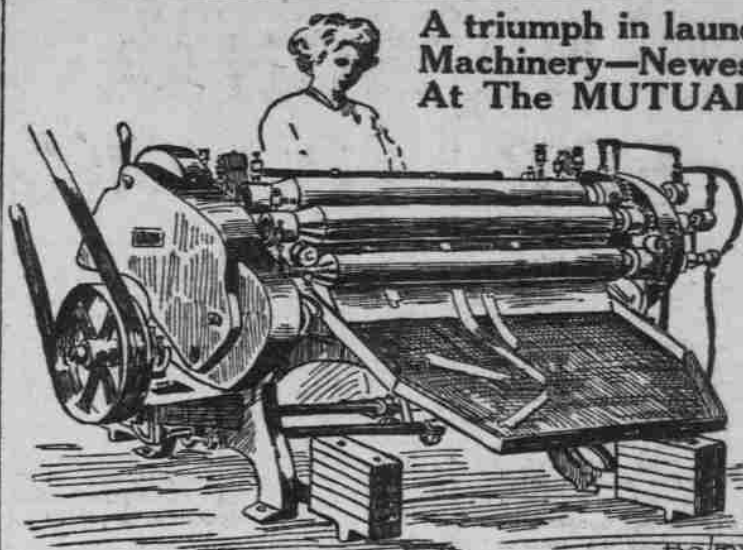

Now maybe you think I'm foolish, niece, with all this talk about a chain of necessity, but I'm not. I'm a business woman fifteen years now, and I've seen a good many cases where that chain weighed heavily enough to drag some pretty strong men and woman down into the mire of failure and disgrace.

Believe me dear, the best way to be sure you'll never chafe under such a chain is never to forge the first link.

As ever,

Your fussy, but well meaning old Aunt.

A triumph in laundry Machinery—Newest thing At The MUTUAL

A Collar Ironer Absolutely Without Friction Gives Same Finish as New Collars Have

Installed at the cost of more than $800. This machine irons perfectly, yet without the slightest friction. Gives a finish like new collars have—not a slick, brittle patent-leather effect which causes them to break easily.

No Other Laundry Can Do This for You

You cannot get that flexible, yet well bodied finish elsewhere, for ordinary gas heated roller ironers bake to a brittle degree and the friction makes the surface slick like celluloid. This new method finishes superbly yet the collars retain the linen appearance. Such collars look much better and wear almost twice as long.
